Mental Models

1. "Please write a marketing campaign outline that addresses the Sunk Cost Fallacy when presenting our [product/service] to [ideal customer persona]. Consider how to frame the value of our offering in terms of future benefits, rather than past investments, and how to overcome any resistance to change or decision-making biases."
2. "Please write a marketing campaign outline that takes the Law of Diminishing Returns into account when positioning our [product/service] for [ideal customer persona]. Consider how to optimize the value we offer for the cost, and how to communicate this value effectively to the target audience."
3. "Please write a marketing campaign outline that leverages the Pareto Principle to identify the most important [product/service features] for [ideal customer persona] and focuses on maximizing the impact of these features. Consider how to prioritize the remaining [20%/80%] of features in a way that adds value to the customer experience."
4. "Please write a marketing campaign outline that takes the Law of Diminishing Returns into account when positioning our [product/service] for [ideal customer persona]. Consider how to optimize the value we offer for the cost, and how to communicate this value effectively to the target audience."
5. "Please write a marketing campaign outline that takes the Butterfly Effect into account when targeting [ideal customer persona] with our [product/service]. Consider how small changes or actions can have large and unpredictable impacts, and how to anticipate and manage these potential impacts."
6. "Write a marketing campaign outline using The Pratfall Effect to create messaging and offers that highlight the imperfections or mistakes of the product or service in a humorous or self-deprecating way. Use this approach to make the product more relatable and appealing to the target audience, and to increase conversion rates."
7. "Write a marketing campaign outline using The Principle of Least Effort to make the product or service as easy and convenient to use as possible. Identify ways to reduce the effort required by the target audience to adopt and use the product, and create messaging and offers that highlight these benefits in order to increase conversion rates."

8. "Write a marketing campaign outline using the Anchoring and Adjustment Heuristic to present information in a logical and incremental way. Consider the audience's initial impressions and assumptions, and anchor the messaging and offers to these initial points. Then, make adjustments based on additional information in order to increase conversion rates."
9. "Write a marketing campaign outline using the Representative Heuristic to appeal to the [ideal customer persona]. Identify the prototype or stereotype that represents the audience's expectations and experiences, and create messaging and offers that are similar to this prototype in order to increase conversion rates."
10. "In order to avoid the Gambler's Fallacy, please write a marketing campaign outline that presents data and statistics in a meaningful and accurate way. Emphasize the importance of considering the full range of information and not relying on past performance as a guarantee of future results. Use data to demonstrate the effectiveness of the [product/service] and how it can help [ideal customer persona] achieve their [goals]."
11. "Using the principle of marginal analysis, please outline a marketing campaign that considers the marginal cost and marginal benefit of various growth strategies. Identify the [strategies] being considered, and weigh the costs and benefits of each in terms of their impact on the overall [objective] of the campaign. Consider factors such as time, resources, and potential return on investment when making decisions."
12. "Write a marketing campaign outline that avoids relying on stereotypes or typical examples when targeting [ideal customer persona]. Use the representativeness heuristic to consider the full range of information and avoid biases and errors in judgment. Use data and statistics to support the value of considering the full range of information."
13. "Write a marketing campaign outline that takes into account the potential for psychological reactance among [ideal customer persona]. Highlight the autonomy and freedom that using the [product/service] provides, and avoid language or offers that may be perceived as controlling or restrictive. Emphasize the choice and control the audience has when using the product."
14. "Write a marketing campaign outline that addresses the potential for the Dunning-Kruger Effect among [ideal customer persona]. Explain the importance of continuing education and learning about the [product/service] in order to make informed decisions. Use data and statistics to support the value of learning and to avoid overestimating one's own competence."

15. "Please write a [type of text] outlining a marketing campaign that uses the availability heuristic to be aware of the importance of considering a wide range of information and not just relying on examples that are easily available or memorable. Identify any potential [biases and errors in judgment] that may occur due to the availability heuristic and create messaging and offers that consider a diverse range of examples and data points. Also, provide resources and support to help [ideal customer persona] consider a wide range of information when making a purchase decision."
16. "Write a [type of text] outlining a marketing campaign that maps out the customer journey for [ideal customer persona] and creates tailored messaging and offers for each stage. Identify the [touchpoints] and [emotional states] that occur at each stage and create messaging and offers that align with these. Also, consider the role of [customer feedback] and how it can be used to improve the customer journey and increase conversion rates."
17. "Please write a [type of text] outlining a marketing campaign using the diffusion of innovation model to predict and shape the adoption of [product/service] among [ideal customer persona]. Identify the [early adopters] and [late majority] within the target audience and create messaging and offers that appeal to their unique needs and motivations. Also, consider the role of [opinion leaders] and how they can help accelerate the diffusion process."
18. "Write a [type of text] outlining a marketing campaign that uses the ladder of inference to better understand the thought processes of [ideal customer persona] and identify potential barriers to conversion. Consider the [assumptions and beliefs] that may influence their decision-making and create messaging and offers that address these. Also, provide resources and support to help them move through the ladder of inference and make a purchase decision."
19. "Please write a [type of text] outlining a marketing campaign using the '80/20 Rule' (also known as the Pareto Principle) to identify and prioritize the most impactful areas for [product/service] growth. Identify the [key metrics] that contribute the most to [desired outcome] and create messaging and offers that focus on these areas. Also, consider the [minority inputs] that may have a disproportionate impact on the [majority outputs] and how to leverage these effectively."

Psychological Frameworks

1. "Write a marketing campaign outline using the 'Reciprocity Bias' framework to create a sense of obligation in [ideal customer persona] to try our [product/service]. Include value-adds or bonuses, and encourage reciprocity by asking for a favor or action in return."
2. "Using the 'Attribution Bias' framework, please write a marketing campaign outline that attributes the successes or failures of our [product/service] to internal factors. Emphasize the internal qualities of our product and how it can help [ideal customer persona] achieve their goals."
3. "Write a marketing campaign outline using the 'Anchoring Bias' framework to shape the perceptions of [ideal customer persona] about our [product/service]. Highlight the most important or relevant information first, and use this information as an anchor to influence their decisions."
4. "Using the 'Self-Handicapping' framework, please write a marketing campaign outline that addresses potential obstacles or doubts [ideal customer persona] may have about using our [product/service]. Offer support and resources to help them overcome these challenges, and emphasize the internal qualities of our product that can help them achieve their goals."
5. "Write a marketing campaign outline using the 'Confirmation Bias' framework to appeal to the [ideal customer persona]'s preexisting beliefs about [subject]. Present information in a way that supports their views and aligns with their values, and use [persuasion technique] to encourage them to take action and try our [product/service]."
6. "Write a marketing campaign outline using the 'Self-Serve Bias' framework to highlight the successes people can achieve with our [product/service] and downplay the role of external factors in the outcomes. Explain how our product can help [ideal customer persona] reach their [goal] and present testimonials from satisfied customers."
